

- Front Page
- World
- U.S.
- Business
- Tech
- Sports
- Health
- Science
- Entertainment
- Lifestyle
- Strange Brew
- Opinion

My News

Personalize your news on DailyMe

- View My News
- Add Content
- Schedule Delivery
- My Newstogram™

My Community

Start Following Editors' Beats

- Search for Editors
- My Beat
- Clip-It
- Edit My Profile

- Follow DailyMe
- Fan DailyMe
- DailyMe on Tumblr
- Get DailyMe on Kindle
- DailyMe RSS Feed
- Install DailyMe Widgets

ADVERTISEMENT

Ads by Google

Citi NRI Remittance
Get great exchange rates, Send money to India. Easy & Fast. Try Now!
www.Citibank.co.in

Online Money Transfer
Send money worldwide for only £0.50 Receive money worldwide for free!

ReadiONE Online Security
Award winning transaction security & cross-channel fraud prevention!
www.ReadiMinds.com

Delap LLP
Specialist in PIN Compliance Review Training, Consulting, & Procedures
www.delapcpa.com

EFT Transaction Security
Securing EFT transactions with HSM and Key Management Solutions.

Debit card surcharge ban may get Senate hearing; House already approved

THE PALM BEACH POST, FLA. | SUSAN SALISBURY AND KIMBERLY MILLER | Thu, Apr 29, 12:17 PM

0 tweet Share

Apr. 29--Floridians may wield their debit cards freely, following a legislative agreement Wednesday to ban customer surcharges on the popular alternative to cash, credit and check.

For more than two decades, Florida law has forbid merchants from passing on the fees they pay to allow for credit card use to customers. But there is no such rule for debit cards. A House bill (HB 621) which passed unanimously in that chamber last week, would add debit cards to the surcharge prohibition.

The Senate version (SB 1106) was stalled as merchants lobbied against the ban and credit card giant Visa lobbies for it. But late Wednesday, Senate sponsor Victor Crist, R-Tampa, said he planned to go ahead and amend his bill to match the House version that prohibits the surcharge. It may come up for a Senate vote Thursday .

"I told both industries that the food fight is over," Crist said.

Crist is concerned that, with just two days left in the 2010 legislative session, not taking the House language would doom the bill, which also includes provisions that increase penalties for taking or possessing a stolen credit card.

"You don't want to take a good thing and put it in jeopardy," Crist said.

Visa representatives said they were trying to protect consumers by supporting a surcharge ban.

For the past three days the company took out full-page advertisements in five Florida newspapers, including The Palm Beach Post, telling people to call Crist's office and support the prohibition. Crist said his phone "rang off the hook," today.

"It is wrong for retailers to surprise and punish hardworking Floridians in today's challenging economy for simply using the payment products of their choice, particularly with highly efficient electronic payments," said Bill Sheedy, group president of the Americas for Visa Inc. "The listed price of an item as advertised or on the price tag should be the actual price consumers pay at checkout."

But Robert Livingstone, president of Ideal Cost, a West Palm Beach-based consulting company that supports merchants, says Visa is acting selfishly. If a surcharge persuades customers to use cash or check, Visa loses out on the fee it collects from merchants, as well as the possibility of getting interest from the consumer.

"They don't want retailers to be able to discriminate payment, for a merchant to talk people into using cash, check or a different brand of credit card," Livingstone said.

Rick McAllister, president and CEO of the Florida Retail Federation, said most merchants currently don't pass along "interchange fees" to consumers. Interchange fees are what businesses are charged to use credit or debit cards.

On transactions where consumers use a PIN number to pay with a debit card, a flat interchange fee could be as low as 8 cents or as much as 45 cents per transaction, according to Livingston.

McAllister said that if the credit card companies cared about consumers, there are many things they could do, such as getting rid of ATM charges, late fees, user fees and charging 29 percent interest.

"It is all about this national argument about interchange fees and merchants' inability to have negotiating positions," McAllister said. "Merchants are helpless."

—

To see more of The Palm Beach Post -- including its homes, jobs, cars and other classified listings -- or to subscribe to the newspaper, go to <http://www.palmbeachpost.com>. Copyright (c) 2010, The Palm Beach Post, Fla. Distributed by McClatchy-Tribune Information Services. For reprints, email tmsreprints@permissionsgroup.com, call 800-374-7985 or 847-635-6550, send a fax to 847-635-6968, or write to The Permissions Group Inc., 1247 Milwaukee Ave., Suite 303, Glenview, IL 60025, USA.

ADVERTISEMENT

Get Virtual Credit Card
Do u want to make Online purchases? Have no credit card? Get one now!
www.EntrePayCards.com

YourAtmSource by Gulentech
ATM Parts of NCR, Diebold, Wincor
sales@youratmsource.com
youratmsource.com

Forex Gold Trading 24/7
Join the Exciting, Risky & Full of Opportunities Gold Trading Market!
www.Easy-Forex.com

Accepting Credit Cards
We have what you need Equipment, Supplies & Support
www.cardwarestore.biz

Ads by Google

- MOST POPULAR
- For-profit vocation schools expanding in Milwaukee
 - School director arrested: ENCSD leader placed on leave after assault charge
 - Hometown gospel trumpeter to play for Haiti
 - Activists criticise new candidacy criteria for student council elections
 - Woman's death in reported St. Paul break-in ruled a homicide: Evidence collection wraps up at house
 - 2 children shot on grounds of Hegewisch school
 - Man lost in water: Presumed dead in reservoir
 - Student had BAC of .322 at crash scene: 'Excellent student' not yet 'out of the woods,' family says
 - Pot-growing facilities busted in Wake
 - Final report: SeaWorld trainer briefly broke free of Tilikum: A colleague of Dawn Brancheau's told investigators she knew the SeaWorld trainer was in trouble.

FACE-IT: NEWS BY MOOD

Infuriating

- DA: Death may not be hit-and-run: UM student fatality under...
- Wagoner County dog dies after rescue; police to pursue abus...
- HOMICIDES IN HAMPTON ROADS: 2010
- Police link items in Greensburg apartment to killing of Jen...